NARROW ESCAPS FROM DRATH BY FIRE.—
A fire broke out in the Eastern Hotel, Boston, the other night, the fire originating in the rear part of the eating-house in the first story, and making such progress before it was discovered, that the immates of the house, eight as ten in number, who occupied the stories above, had barely time to escape with their lives. Several escaped by means of a rope, which was obtained by a police efficier from a vessel lying at the wharf, and nearly all were obliged to leave their clothing behind.

A correspondent at a Northern wateringplace thus reveals how he once passionally

Down in an inner pocket of that valise; there lies a perfumed little glove; years have fled since it was worn, yet the scent of the rose-leaves it once pressed clings to it still; you might turn each of its fingers wrong side out and discover nothing therein—yet that little glove contains the history of a life—a two-volume romance set in nonpareil solid. It is a memento of a watering-place; it tells where I met my fate; and a postscript in the thumb-lining tells where our paths diverged. She was passionately fond of music, and your correspondent—though he hadn't thought of it before—suddenly discovered that he "had an ear but no voice." Subsequent events led him to believe that his ears were much longer proportionately Subsequent events led him to believe that his ears were much longer proportionately than his voice was loud. Well, from long meter and short meter the transition to meet her by moonlight was quite natural. In the course of one of these moonlight meetings—it was in June, I remember the month perfectly, and could tell you the day were it necessary—I gave her my young heart's affections, and a ruby ring and a red rose, and she—she gave me that glove you see there, and said she'd always be my friend. She is married now to a small lawyer in the southern part of Illinois, and has two small children and the fever and ague.

PROGRESS OF THE IMPROVEMENTS IN PARIS. The transformation of the flower-plantations of the grand avenue of the Champs Eiysees proceeds rapidly. For some days past a considerable number of workmen have been in possession of the square-plot of the Grque, where masses of shrubs and flowers are to be placed, as on other portions of this delightful promenade. Meanwhile, the elegant fountain called Les Quatre Salsons, having been coppered over, is being put in its place again. The flowers to be planted in the Carre du Cirque were recently purchased by the Municipal Council of Paris, in Holland, and most of them are in full bloom. The rhododendrous, the kalmais, the azalias, and the cannas are said to be very fine specimens. The environs of Paris, as well as the capital, receive fresh improvements. In the Park of PROGRESS OF THE IMPROVEMENTS IN PARIS. receive fresh improvements. In the Park of Vesinet, spontaneously fixed upon by the Parisians as a site for country-seats, a second and vast lake has been formed; and the sitand vast lake has been formed; and the situation, naturally picturesque, has been rendered more so by the earthworks thrown up to render the ground more undulating. Water in abundance is to be supplied by powerful steam machinery, which the engineers are putting in place in the building near the reservoir. Moreover, the two bridges over the railway, uniting both sides of the park, are finished; so that, henceforward, Vesinet will rank among the most delightful summer residences about Paris.

INCONCEIVABILITY OF THE NATIONAL DEBT OF GREAT BRITAIN.—The London Times observes: "Our national debt is the nearest approach to the infinite yet achieved by man. So little can we grasp it, and so much do we class it with other eternitics and other infinities, that, in order to be practical, we take bits of it, and play in our fancy with an odd ten million or so. What know we about 1,000,000,000 sterling? It is like the distance of a fixed star, or the bulk of the sun, or the length of a comet's tail, or the velocity of light. House and land, stock and share, mortgage and bill—avery thing has its ups and downs; but that which changes last is the three-per-cents. The commercial spirit loves their modest, faithful, constant character, their equal mind, their moderation in prosperity, their firmness in adversity, their help in time of need, their open, honest countenance, like the good wine that needs no bush."

ATOGA.—A late letter from Saratoga says: We were not a little amused one evening, while looking in upon a hop at the Union, last week. In one of the sets of dancers was a young man whose dress and air bespoke a sprig of wealth, if not of royalty. He would have passed for the Prince of Wales, or the Prince of Noodles. No one in the saloon equaled him in the neatness or elegance of his attire, or the dashing monchalence with which he played his part. He was the favorite of the young ladies, and the especial pet of managing mammas. Yet that young man's mother, a year or two since, took in washing in the city of Albany, New York.

HORRINGS DEATH—TWO SCAVENGERS SUPPOCATED IN A VAULT.—The other night Conrad Disser and George Scholl, night-scavengers, were suffocated in a sink in New York.
The deceased were a party of scavengers who had been engaged to clean the vault, and as Disser was about to descend into the sink he was overcome by the noxious gas arising t erefrom, and fell to the bottom.
Scholl ha tened to his assistance, when he,
too, w.s. overcome by the foul air, and was precipi'ated to the bottom in like manner.

A FAM ILLUSTRATION.—In a recent number of Vanity Fair, "John Bull" is represented to be taking a nap, with the night-mare crawling all over him, in the shape of "the nephew of his uncle," and sundry other Frenchmen, pike in hand, in the act of making a hostile demonstration on the old gentleman, who, with his legs crippled with a national debt, which he can not shake off, is in a very tight place. The likeness of Louis Napoleon is capital.

San. Houston and Obnoxious Newspa-pens.—Gov. Houston has a summary method of ridding himself of obnoxious newspapers. A copy of the Liberty (Texas). Gazette was returned from Austin, a few weeks since, with this indorsement: "This department does not require waste paper, so you will please send no more here. please send no more here. SAM. HOUSTON,"

THE RESIDENTS OF MELAZZO NOT HOSTILE TO GARIBALDI.—A letter addressed to the Unita Italiana, contradicts a statement that the inhabitants of Melazzo were hostile to Garibaldi, and says that nearly all of them had left the town before the battle. It was a number of gendarmes escaped from Palermo, joined with those of Melazzo, who entered the descreted houses, and threw boiling oil on Garibaldi's men.

FOUNTAINS VS. DRUKING DINGS.—In London there are 10,000 places for the sale of intoxicating liquors, and the "United Kingdon Temperance and General Provident Institution propose to counteract their influence by the erection of water fountains. This so-ciety have already erected about forty drink-ing fountains, and about sixty more are in the process of construction.

HEAVY SUIP FOR DAMAGES AGAINST A RAILWAY PRESIDENT.—The Lasalle Fress learns that the stockholders of the Northern Illino's Coal and Iron Company are about to commence a suit against E. D. Taylor, President of said company, for $10,000 damages, for conspiring with the miners to promote his own ends.

Last APPEARANCE OF THE CHICAGO COURVES.—A drill by the Chicago Zouaves at the Wigwam in that city, on Tuesday evening, is understood to have been their "last appearance" in a military capacity

Terrible Character of the Zephirs of The Paris correspondent of the New York Journal of Commerce, says in a late A correspondent, speaking of the aims of the French Emperor in Asia and Africa, thus

York Journal of Commerce, says in a late letter:

There is nothing very new in the way of embroideries, which continue to be chiefly of very delicate patterns, both for collars, fichus, and pocket handkerchiefs. The latter can nowhere be found in greater variety or in better taste than at Chaperon's, 11 Rue 'de la Paix. Vignettes are a good dealed used for morning wear, leaving the more elaborately embroidered and lace-trimmed handkerchiefs for fuller dress. A whole set of these latter, evidently part of a rich trouseras, were composed of designs suited to the season; ears of cora and wild flowers forming a rich border in some, while in others figures of shepherds and shepherdesses and their flocks were exquisitely represented in planetis and point d'arses.

At Faguer Taboulee, 83 Rue de Richelle, we saw, some little time ago, in anticipation of a summer which has not yet shown itself, a charming collection of quite novel faus, and also some very elegant combs of tortoiseshell inlaid with gold, either forming a toreade or in bales at the top. These are worn dividing the large double bow into which the back hair is now generally formed, and now given rise to very fantastic productions.

The perfumes of Taboulee continue la great repute for their suavity and delicacy. The use of his Althiene for the complexion at this season of the year is equally recommended.

It appears that a new color has been reconting the large and and and the large of the complexion at this season of the year is equally recommended. speaks of the Zephirs, a wild and almost lawless military body, formed out of the very worst elements of the French army:

These Zephirs, to whom the Zouaves are as sucking babes, are the corps perdus, or corps de discipline, formed out of the refractory soldiers of the army, who have served their time in prison, or at the hulks, and who are immediately, on regaining their liberty, drafted off into the Zephirs, who are sent into the most unhealthy out-stations of Africa, on the borders of the desert, where they live the life of savages rather than of civilized men, warring with the Arabs, chased by wild beasts, starved and stinted when the rations fail short, which, from the want of roads, not unfrequently happens in the rainy season; fighting among themselves; in short, living the lawless life of brigands, subject to one law alone, that of the strongest. Sometimes these military convicts, like our own civil convicts of Australia, escape into the desert, and have been known to reappear with sunburnt skin and camel's-hair burnous, with broad straw-hat, and arms bare to the shoulder, flying at the head of a company of Kabyles, and cutting right through the Zaphir camp, when such a move is needed to procure food or water for their horses, and leaving their ancient comrades thunder-struck at the volley of French oaths, which seem to explode from beneath the hood and broad straw brim as they gallon like lightning through the camp.

With such an education as this no wonder that those who live through the first year can live forever. No climate, or change or lawless military body, formed out of the very

It appears that a new color has been recently discovered produceable from coal-tar!

It is called dianthines, and varies from deep purple to all the shades of bright rose color.

With such an education as this no wonder that those who live through the first year can live forever. No climate, or change or discipline can effect a hardened Zephir. The officers of this corps are equally blessed; they, too, are convicts, having undergone punishment. As this is known, they, of course, expect none of the submission and respect sought for in other branches of the service, and treat upon equality with their men. Some years ago, there was a story told of one of the officers having endeavored to establish some sort of penalty for theft in the regiment he commanded, and having been shot down without mercy for his pains—the two culprits whom he had wished to bring to court-martial having coolly played the "losing game" at piquet for the disagreeable job of sending a bullet through his brain. Needless to say, the loser acquitted himself most conscientiously of the debt of honor, the whole of the company to which the players belonged standing round to see fair play. SINGULAR SIGHT-A RAILWAY CAR FULL Singular Sight—A Railway Car Full of Twins.—A sight seldom witnessed was presented to the patrons of one of the New York city railroads. In one of the cars, on its trip up town, there were three pair of twins, each representing a nationality. First, nearest the door, an American mother with two fine boys. Second, a Scotch mother with a boy and a girl; these had rather a meager look, but the mother stated they were very healthy. Third, were two boys of Irish parents, they were fair samples of the children belonging to that class. On the opposite side rents, they were fair samples of the children belonging to that class. On the opposite side of the car sat a mother who had an interesting trio of triplets. These little ones were seven months old, and were looking finely. While the attention of the passengers was taken up with surveying these little ones, two ladies entered the car, and to add to the astonishment of the passengers, they were twins also. The ladies were about twenty-three years of age, while the babies were respectively four, seven and nine months. One of the mothers, who had, including the twins, four children with her, stated that she had five more children at home.

Cowardly Attack by Rowdes on a Railway Train—Supposed Murder of a Passenger.—As the train of cars was returning from Norristown, Penn., at a late hour the other night, with the Philadelpita delegates of the People's party, some dastardly scoundrels, lying in wait on the track, made a cowardly and uncalled for attack on the train, with stones and other missiles. The windows of the cars were guarded with a wire grating, thus preventing the stones from entering the train and injuring any one therein; but they were also hurled at persons on the platform, and two young men were seriously injured about the head, and others almost blinded. It was reported at a late hour last evening that a young man, named George Hawthorn, was struck on the head with a large stone, and knocked off the cars. A Most Complicated Transaction in New Orleans—A Strature-Caning-Challers of doing things in New Orleans. A grocer, through the aid of a neighboring variety dealer, detected a clerk pilfering articles from the grocery store. The grocer told the clerk to leave quietly, as he did not wish to expose him. The clerk sued for back wages, and the grocer offered half the sum claimed, which was refused, and the grocer proved and the grocer offered half the sum claimed, which was refused, and the grocer proved the thefts, and the clerk had to pay the costs. Clerk then challenged grocer to a duel with broadswords, but grocer declined to fight with a thief. The nephew of the clerk, who bore the challenged, then challenged grocer, who accepted his offer. Meanwhile said nephew met and savagely caned the variety man, who had testified to his uncle's dishonesty. The duel was to have come off on a certain day, and about 100 persons had assembled at the place appointed to see the fight—but it seems the duelists did not "come to time," having either been stopped by the police or gone to another field. Jose Quincy Adams an Office Holder vor Fifty-there Years.—None of our great men have held so many offices, nor enjoyed such a long and uninterrupted official career as John Quincy Adams. He was Minister to the Netherlands, under Washington, 1794-96; Minister to Portugal, 1706-97; Minister to Prussia during the Administration of his father, 1798-1806; Senator, 1803-8; Minister to Russia, under Madison, 1809-13; Commissioner to Ghent, 1815-17; Secretary of State under Monroe, 1817-24; President, 1824-29, and member of Congress from 1831 to 1847, the date of his death. Thus, in a period of fifty-three years, the intervals between the laying down of one office and the assumption of another, amount, when added together, to less than two years. JOHN QUINCY ADAMS AN OFFICE-HOLDER

Account of the Origin of Frmale Stavery in Africa, only females are sold into slavery, because once a wife cruelly murdered her husband at the request of the king of the country. At first the king is said to have desired the husthe request of the king of the country. At first the king is said to have desired the husband, who was of kigh rank, to kill his wife and bring him a piece of her flesh, which had been indicated by the sooth-sayers as a sure cure for the sick monarch. The husband, fascinated by the beauty of his wife, was unwilling to obey the royal command. The king, therefore, commanded the wife to murder her husband, which she did without hesitation. Since that time it has been the custom to sell women into slavery into other countries; but when male slaves are transported beyond Senjero, they are said generally to commit suicide by hanging themselves.

A FEMALE ADVENTURER PASSES A NIGHT IN A MONASTREY.—A letter from Paris says: "A tourist, just arrived from the Grand Chartreuse, tells me that last Thursday week Chartreuse, tells me that last Thursday week the monks were horribly acandalized by the fact of a lady having, contrary to all regulations, obtained admission to the monastery, and passed the night therein. The fair intruder, an imhabitant of Valence, dressed herself in men's clothes, and passed in with a party of gentlemen. In the morning she recorded the triumph of hercuriosity by carving her name and address in the door of the cell in which she slept. The Duchess de Berry was the heroine of a similar adventure some years ago, but there has been no instance of the kind since."

A Great Pedestrian of the Past.—The Boston Daily Advertiser, of the 14th of February, 1829, says that a young gentleman of Boston walked to Charleston, S. C., 1,150 miles, in thirty-six days; from Niagara Falls to Rochester in two days, accomplishing the first day forty-nine miles, although he was detained three hours in Lockport; from Sara-ABUNDANCE OF BERRIES IN VIRGINIA.—A. A family man, sixty years of age, has eloped with his adepted daughter, aged eighteen, leaving a wife, and taking $900 in money, the proceeds of a furniture sale, to which the deceived "relict" was induced to consent. fuced to consent.

The Great Rain Storm in Rhode Island.

The Woonsocket Patriot, of the 24th, says that the most powerful rain of the season visited that vicinity on Wednesday afternoon. It was only of about two hours duration, yet three or four inches of rain fell. The streets and roads were flowed with broad streams, and in some places were badly gullied. In places five miles distant there was no rain at all.
